

Press Release

13-th June, 2006

Boxtec introduces AXIGEN to Swiss market

Bucharest, 13 June 2006 – AXIGEN Mail Server became available for Swiss market as a result of the distribution agreement signed between local company Boxtec Internet Appliances and Gecad Technologies (Romania).

Boxtec Internet Appliances is a leading distributor in Switzerland for Internet-based appliances and opensource software based products.

"A lot of customers are looking for an integrated solution with Antispam, Antivirus and Webmail. Our partnership with AXIGEN allows us to fill this gap with a superior product, backed up by excellent support and development staff. As more and more SoHo and Medium companies move away from the large solutions of Microsoft, IBM, Novell and others we expect a rapid growth for AXIGEN products in Switzerland", said Christoph Schneeberger, CEO of Boxtec Internet Appliances.

The distribution agreement allows Swiss customers to access latest electronic communication technologies developed by AXIGEN. They will also benefit from a professional and localized technical support from Boxtec.

"AXIGEN is committed to build strong relationships with its partners all over the world, by offering business solutions tailored to each company's specific line of activity. Being our first distributor in Switzerland, Boxtec represents an important partner, recognized and appreciated on Swiss market. We count on our partner for more visibility and best distribution to Swiss companies", says Oana Bornaz, CEO for AXIGEN.

AXIGEN was launched on international market in the second part of 2005 and now operates on Linux and BSD platforms. New versions for Solaris, MacOS and Windows will be available until the end of this year. At present, AXIGEN is distributed all over the world by more than 20 partners.

About Boxtec Internet Appliances:

Established 2000, boxtec is currently extending its offerings with AXIGEN as strategic E-Mail solution for small to medium enterprises. Our strong commitment to excellence in support and customer service is the base of our success.

Please find more details at <http://www.boxtec.ch/>

About AXIGEN Mail Server:

AXIGEN Mail Server, a fully self developed solution, is a solid, faultless communication tool for fast companies, designed by dedicated, experienced Gecad Technologies developers. Gecad Technologies has a 5 year history of expertise in technology research, information security, project management and messaging solutions.

This expertise now allows the development team to issue major updates regularly and observe an ambitious road map that includes MacOS and Windows versions, along with product functionality expansion. Oana Bornaz, our CEO, best sums up these past two years of careful development and multi-million euro investments: "We have built a fast, reliable and secure Internet messaging solution and we're looking to make a difference on the world market with our product. We thank our users and business partners for trust and assure them they will greatly benefit from AXIGEN." For further details on AXIGEN Mail Server, search our website – <http://www.axigen.com>

